

PLANNING DIRECTIVE 24

Log of Action on Planning Directive No. 24 - Joint Army-Navy Intelligence Effort

DATE	ACTION
16 April 1946	Contacted Captain Sabalot and talked with him briefly about this matter. He has heard nothing about it since the Memorandum for General Vandenberg (20 February 1946) left Navy Department, except for indications that Army is working on it. The personnel and space estimates (Encl. G and C to Memorandum of 20 February 1946) are very rough estimates and have no special basis. He had to put in some figures, and put in the figures for Navy personnel allowances for the fiscal year 1947. In any joint operation, the final figures for space and personnel would depend on the extent of the pooling of resources, the location (whether in same building with command and operations, etc., or not) etc. The phrase "susceptible of C.I.G. action" was written in at a time when it was thought that C.I.G. might be an operating agency, and has no particular meaning in Captain Sabalot's mind at this time.
17-18 April 1946	Called Colonel McLean and finally talked to him on phone. G-2 has been moving and he suggests my calling again Monday, April 22 when things will be in better shape for me to converse.
23 April 1946	Memorandum re above subject forwarded to Colonel Perry after discussion with Colonel McLean relative to MID recommendations and conclusions.
